INSIGHT THROUGH ANALYSIS

20th April 2016

To whom it may concern

Benchmarking Assessment Group provides psychological testing for a wide range of client organisations in Europe and Asia, and also conducts original research on psychological assessment, occupational and clinical measurement, and related statistical methods. Part of our work involves the design of experimental psychological testing protocols, requiring the creation of different types of recorded media for use in stimulus-response processes.

We engaged Jeni Dean to work with us as a voiceover artist on a project that focused on fear response testing, and which involved her playing the role of a broadcast news field reporter. Given the nature of the project, it was essential that the performance was realistic, and in line with the style of delivery expected of a professional standard broadcaster.

We experienced Jeni as a very professional and engaging individual at all stages of the process. She was very organised and attentive to detail, and worked well to our requirements and deadlines, demonstrating a clear commitment to delivery to a very high standard.

Jeni delivered to our expectations and we are very pleased to offer our recommendation as regards her abilities and professionalism as a voice artist. We welcome any contact to verify this reference and to provide any additional information that may be of relevance.

Sincerely
